

How eSignature Reduces Your Costs

Using Rubex's eSignature over physical signatures comes with more benefits than you probably realize. The amount of money and time saved will be compounded with a rise in customer satisfaction and improved revenue.

Much like how going paperless has both direct and indirect ways of saving you money, so does eSignature. For hard costs, you'll see savings in expenses for paper, postage, copying, physical storage, and paper destruction. While these are significant savings to your overhead, you'll see even more savings in the indirect expenses of handling physical signature, mostly related to the human labor involved. Your office will no longer have to spend labor hours on tasks like:

Preparing and mailing documents

Processing responses

Tracking and following-up on outstanding transactions

Distribution of copies

Manual data entry

Creating paper copies of signed documents

Reexamining and submitting peer review for compliance

Storage and retrieval of documents

When all of these tasks are accomplished with just a few keystrokes, or even automatically, you'll find that your office can accomplish so much more.

Furthermore, the chances for costs related to spontaneous events such as liability/legal or compliance are significantly reduced. Greater tools for ensuring authenticity and automating the steps required for compliance will cut out human error and protect you during audits and other investigations.

Who Can Benefit From eSignature?

Banks and Financial Services: The protections offered by eSignature to financial services make it ideal for reinvigorating their processes for securities transactions with regard to SEC and FINRA rules.

Notary Public: For notaries in states that allow the use of electronic signatures to notarize digital documents, eSignature makes for the perfect, digital notary seal that will stand-up to any legal scrutiny.

Healthcare: For healthcare organizations that must keep all digital documents, including ones they share with outside parties, in accordance with the strict rules set by HIPAA, eSignature keeps all transactions private and secure through encryption.

Education: eSignature can be used by public education institutions to obtain consent from parents of students or adult students to share educational records covered under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act Regulations.

Real Estate: eSignature makes closing deals by requesting and receiving signatures one the fastest and easiest parts of your job. For property managers, your lease agreement process can be streamlined to be as effortless as possible.

Many More: Businesses, both big and small, in any industry can benefit from this electronic signature solution that supplements an already impressive suite of document management features. It's more secure and compliant than third-party electronic signature services.

How eSignature

Can Boost Your Revenue

When online transactions are able to be executed instantly through eSignature, revenue for brokerage firms and other businesses can be improved immediately. More sales are closed because transactions can be finalized and executed immediately when a prospect decides to purchase. No time to second-guess or form buyer's remorse as they wait for a contract to be delivered.

Your reach is improved giving you more opportunities to attract and serve customers that would have previously been too burdensome to work with due to their physical location. It also means current customers are able to move wherever they need to, and you can still maintain business with them.

Cash flow is improved due to the further streamlining the processing of financial transactions, speeding up the process from weeks to days.
